BURYING THE DEAD.

Sad Work in Wisconsin's Flame Swept Towns.

STILL RECOVERING DEAD BODIES.

Nine Bodies Found in One Place So Badly Burned That It Was Impossible to Determine Their Sex—The Dead Now Number 379.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 5.—A Pine City (Minn.) special to The Pioneer Press says: The death roll at Sandstone has probably reached its limit, and presents the awful total of sixty-seven This is not an estimate nor a guess, but an accurate account of the bodies interred Not all were from the little village, a few having been brought in from the immediate vicinity.

There are here immense quarries, employing in a busy time a considerable number of men when actively operated. For some time work has been light, and for this reason it is impossible to get an accurate estimate of the population of the place, but a fair figure is probable 850. Many took refuge in the quarries and some in Kettle river, just below, in a deep ravine, where the Eastern Minnesota crosses a bridge 200 feet long and 250 feet high.

Many of those who were burned were caught on their way to this refuge, and others were caught in the village streets. In one well four persons died a death that must have been a mixture of drowning, suffocating and burning. Yesterday the well was utilized as a grave, and nine other bodies were placed in it and all covered with earth. Two rescuing parties were organized in Pine City yesterday. One party found two bodies of men unrecognizably burned. Today two other parties have gone out in other directions

The country west of here is very heavily wooded, with few clearings and water. No report whatever has been heard from the settlers, and it is feared that all have perished. The Duluth right of way and the country within a considerable distance on both sides up as far as Skunk Lake has been scoured pretty thoroughly. Careful search was made and revealed twenty-eight dead bodies They were in an awful condition and could not be handled with any care Five children of the Greenfield family were so badly burned that all were put in a box designed to contain an adult. The mother and father were in Hinckley and were saved, but their family and home is wiped out of existence.

The bodies of the Robertson family of five persons, three of whom are adults, were brought in, as were those of Mrs. John McNamara and her son, who were refugees from Hinkley and who made their way further up the track than their neighbors. Near Mrs. McNamara's body was a satchel containing $500 in currency and $3,000 in checks. Not far away were the bodies of two unknown boys, presumably from Hinckley. In a cellar half a mile west of Skunk Bridge were found bodies which were identified as those of Mrs. Westlund and her two babies. A Polish woman named Sophie Wacki, her baby, Mrs. Westlund's sister and Mrs. Lind and her five children This number, 31 to 34 to thirty-one brought in from Duluth tracks on Sunday, and the body of Ott. Rowley, general freight and passenger agent of the Duluth and Winnipeg railroad, swells the total of the loss of life along this track to upwards of sixty. The work at the cemetery yesterday was in charge of Mr. F. G. Webber. It met with one peculiarly sad interruption. On Monday T. E Webster, the mayor of Hinckley, thought he recognized his wife in the horrid heap of dead. During his temporary absence the body he hoped to claim for a more formal and sacred burial was thrown into a pit and covered up. When he learned of it he was half crazed with sorrow. A portion of the trench where some men remembered to have placed the body was dug up, but either the body he sought was not the one uncovered or the handling it had received had destroyed the scanty marks of identification, and Webster was forced to admit that the shapeless corpse was probably not that of his wife, and the loose sand was again thrown into the pit.

There is one point where an indefinite number of bodies may be found It is west of the Duluth bridge across the Grindstone and at the northwest edge of the town, where there was a mill pond of considerable depth and probably 400 feet wide. On the bank nearest the town stood the plant of the Brennan Lumber company and its yard, with about 500,000 feet of sawed lumber. A considerable number of persons were seen making their way to the water of the pond down the alleys between the piles of burning lumber. There is absolutely no basis for an accurate approximation of how many there were. One thing is certain, no one who went into it ever came back to give an account of himself or his companions. To the intense heat of the burning lumber and the suffocating volume of smoke which it alone furnished was added that which went up from the sawdust and edgings through which the fire ran to the very water's edge. The water was deep, and those who were there probably chose death by drowning to suffocation or burning.

The pond is yet unapproachable. The sawdust bank is still full of fire and as treacherous as quicksand. The smoke is so dense that not even a sight of the pond can be had from a point near the place where the bodies are supposed to be, and it may be some days before an attempt at recovery can be made.

The Hinckley horror is dawning in its awful magnitude. There are now lying in the desolate cemetery, under a shallow covering of sand, or in rough boxes which take the places of caskets, 379 bodies. Four trenches in all have been opened, separated by about four feet.

The foreman of the construction train reported to Coroner Cowan that on the hill at the north end of the bridge across the Grindstone were nine bodies so completely incinerated that the sex could not be distinguished.

The revised list of dead, as far as known, is as follows: Buried at Hinckley and vicinity, 285; at Sandstone, 67; at Pokegama, 25; at Miller, 12; estimated dead not found, 80; total, 370.

PENNSYLVANIA'S FOREST FIRES.

No Loss of Life, but Great Destruction of Property.

BRADFORD, Pa., Sept. 5.—The forest fires are still burning in this vicinity, and considerable damage has resulted. Doyles' mills yesterday called on Bradford for aid in surpressing the fires. It was reported that the flames were sweeping down on the town from the direction of Mount Jewett, and the inhabitants had all deserted their homes. An engine was at once sent forward, but as all telephone wires are down no particulars have been received. It is feared that Camp Halsey will be destroyed. Fire is raging all along the Erie line from Hutchins to the outskirts of Mount Jewett, and as the wind is rising it may get beyond control again. McAmbley's mills, near Mount Jewett are in danger. So far 400,000 feet of logs have been destroyed there. A large force of men are fighting the flames and hope to prevent further loss.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 5 --It is reported here that English Center, a small hamlet in Lycoming county of 200 inhabitants has been destroyed by forest fires, but all the wires are down and the report cannot be confirmed. Reports from Pine Creek lumber region indicate the loss of thousands of dollars' worth of property. Bark and lumber valued at $4,000 belonging to Cummings & Heilman, of this city, has been destroyed, together with other large lumber piles belonging to dealers in this locality It is also reported that destructive fires are raging near Kane, and that the losses are very heavy, Thus far no loss of life has been reported

Fredonia Threatened with Destruction.

The Ezeta Extradition Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept 5.—General Antonio Ezeta and his four fellow refugees from San Salvador were brought into the United States district court for examination on extradition Judge Beatty sat with Judge Morrow. Counsel for the defense at once raised the question of the court's jurisdiction Judge Morrow declared that for the purpose of the present proceeding the men were fully within its jurisdiction. The taking of testimony on behalf of the government of San Salvador was then ordered to proceed. Nearly all the afternoon was consumed in wrangling over a deposition in which Ezeta and Juan Chenfuegos are charged with the murder of Tolosa Canas, a teamster.

Frazer's Alleged Murders Released.

SEDAN, Kan., Sept. 5 —The six men who were arrested two weeks ago, charged with complicity in the famous murder in 1890 of John G Frazer, a heavy stock dealer, have been set at liberty. Their arrest caused a sensation at the time, as the men were all prominent citizens of this and surrounding counties John New, a convict now serving a term in the state penitentiary, was to have been the prosecution's strongest witness, but at the last moment he refused to appear, and the cases against the six men were dismissed.

Vermont's Republican Majority.

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Sept. 5.—Returns from the southern portion of Vermont indicate increased Republican majorities over two years ago and a solid Republican delegation from this section for the legislature The total vote is about one-fifth less than two years ago The returns indicate that the Republicans have carried the state by from 26,000 to 28,000, the largest ever given a governor in an off year, and the largest ever given with the exception of Governor Dillingham in the year of Garfield's election

Boys Cause a Big Shutdown.

SPRING VALLEY, Ills., Sept. 5 —Another strike is on in Spring Valley This time it is the "trappers," and while they only number about 100 boys, nevertheless 1,500 men will be idle until they resume work. The cause of the strike is a reduction of wages. General Manager Dalzell wants to cut the boys five cents a day and the little fellows say they will not stand it The drivers held a meeeing and voted to stand by the boys

Elkins is lying at his home in that place with an acute attack of erysipelas His condition requires absolute rest and quiet. In the Hilton trophy match the New Jersey team of twelve men broke the record for 200 yards with a score of 267. The best previous record on any range with a similar rifle was 264. The Pennsylvania and New York teams came close behind, the former coming within one of the record. The team scores for the interstate match were: New Jersey, 1,044; Pennsylvania, 1,038; District of Columbia, 1,030; New York, 1,029; Maine, 1,006; Georgia, 1,003.

Twelve Miners in Peril.

MOWEAQUA, Ills., Sept. 5.—A serious accident happened at the Assumption coal shaft, seven miles south of here. In lowering a cage the wire cable broke and the cage fell to the bottom, demolishing everything in it way. The shaft is 1,000 feet deep. The engineer, losing control of his engine, let the up bound cage go up through the roof of the shaft house, carrying complete destruction in its path. The whole side of the engine room was torn out and the cable drums were wrecked. Twelve men at work below have not been taken out. As no air shaft exists they are in a perilous condition.

He says Robert J. can go two seconds faster than his new record of 2.03¾, and when asked if the pacer could travel a mile in two minutes flat, replied: "I would not let Robert J. pace in two minutes for anything What a back number he would be then. People would not care to see him after he had reached his limit, and could not approach it again."

Reading Railroad Reorganization

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—At a conference between President Earle, of the Finance Company of Philadelphia, and members of the Olcott reorganization committee of Reading. It was agreed that the interests of both committees were practically identical, and that the best interests of the security holders they represented would be subserved by consolidation of the committees. JONES A POPULIST.

The Nevada Statesman Deserts the Republican Party.

TWENTY-ONE YEARS A SENATOR.

His Change of Political Faith Makes the Nevada Congressional Delegation Solid for the Third Party—The Announcement Causes Great Surprise.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The Star says: Today furnished a genuine sensation in political circles by the statement that Senator John P. Jones, of Nevada, who has represented his state in the United States senate for over twenty-one years as a Republican, has formally renounced his allegiance to the party and cast his lot with the Populists.

Senator Jones has written a letter to his constituency, which will be published in Nevada this evening, and will be the first intimation to the people of that state that he has doffed the political garment which he has worn with such distinction for so many years and will don the garb of the third party. His intentions have been kept secret from all but his most intimate associates, and it was his intention to have the first public announcement of his action made in the letter which will be published in his political home. On learning that the fact had leaked out, however, he gave the letter to the Associated Press yesterday before his departure for New York. His letter is an elaborate defense of his action, declaring that "whatever change has occurred in the relation between the Republican party and myself is not a change in me." His change of policy is based almost entirely upon the question of silver.

Senator Jones' bolt makes the Nevada congressional delegation solidly Populist, Senator Stewart having left the Republican party some time ago, and Representative Newlands having been elected as a silverite. The announcement that he has joined the Populists was a great surprise, as he has been regarded as one of the ablest men on the Republican side of the chamber, and as a man of solid parts and abilities. He has not been a frequent speaker in the senate. When he did take part in the debate he was always listened to with attention, and on the silver question his set speech usually kept his audience until he finished. He has been a straight party man hitherto, and enjoyed the distinction of representation on the finance committee, a place much sought after His action in joining the Populists may result in a shake up for the minority representation on this committee.

Mr. Jones was first elected to the senate in 1873 and has been continuously elected each six years since then, his present term running until 1897. He is an Englishman by birth, well known in financial circles, both in the east and west, and generally reported to be one of the wealthiest men in the senate as a result of successful mining operations, in which he has had a number of ups and downs. He was a member of the international monetary conference, being appointed by President Harrison, one of the delegates from the United States, and his speech at Brussels was conceded to be a great effort by the delegates to that conference, whether they were of silver faith or not.

SENATOR JONES EXPLAINS.

The Republican Party, He Says, Has Outlived Its Usefulness.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Senator Jones arrived in this city last evening, and was interviewed by a representative of the Associated Press in regard to changing his politics from Republicanism to Populism. In response to a remark that the change had occasioned great surprise, the senator said he had not changed whatever. The views that he advocated now were the same that he had been upholding in congress since he first entered that body. He regarded, and his constituents regarded, the money question as being of greater importance than the tariff or any other matter the late congress had acted upon.

The Populist party, he said, is growing in the west for the reason that it was evident the two old parties had outlived their usefulness. Parties, like men, have their periods of usefulness and periods of senility. It would be very easy for a man like him, surrounded by many friends, to march in the ranks and let the campaign for what was best for mankind be managed by others. It took no little courage to step aside and fight with those who were regarded as cranks and seceders by the older parties

Pitched Battle Between Negro Factions.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—Rev. Ben Gaston, who recently gave a personally conducted emigration excursion for negroes from Atlanta to Liberia, was shot during a general fight in Hancock county. Gaston has been in that county working up an emigration scheme. Two or three thousand negroes have become worthless idlers in consequence. A negro politician named Jenkins told the Gaston crowd that they were deluded. Gaston and his lieutenants got mad at Jenkins and there was a pitched battle between the two factions. Gaston was shot in the head and six others wounded, but not seriously.

Increased Treasury Receipts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—Treasury officials are much gratified at the rapid increase in receipts, as it now seems probable at least that the stringency which has prevailed for so long is about at an end. The receipts both from customs and internal revenue have brought the cash balance up to a point beyond the danger point. The gold reserve is also gaining slowly. The situation is regarded by the treasury officials as very encouraging and puts the necessity of another bond issue out of the question for some time at least.

Ex-Cashier Green on Trial.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., Sept. 5. — Dela Green, former cashier of the defunct First National bank, of Muncy, was placed on trial in the United States court here yesterday. There are fourteen counts in the indictment. Green was cashier of the bank for about two years before it suspended, and it is claimed that he reported the sum of $20,000 as being in a vault. When this was opened by the bank examiner, however, no money was found, and the suspension followed. The depositors were heavy losers.

Peary Relief Expedition Safe.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 5.—The Danish vessel Tjalfe, commanded by Captain Brick, has arrived here from Greenland, and the captain reports that he met the members of the Peary relief expedition at Godhaven on July 17. All were well. The winter in the Arctic regions has been extraordinarily long and severe, and Captain Brick thinks that the chances of finding alive Bjorling and Kalstennius, the Swedish explorers, who started for the north in 1892, and the search for whom was one of the objects of the Peary relief expedition, are very remote.

Fort McHenry's Hundredth Anniversary.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 5.—Governor Brown has issued a proclamation declaring Sept. 12 a legal holiday in Maryland, and ordering a suspension of business on that day. The Society of the War of 1812 will hold an elaborate celebration of the hundredth anniversary of Fort McHenry at the fort, and ceremonies will be held at several other places.

Bismarck's Health Jeopardized.

BERLIN, Sept. 5 —Prince Bismarck's health is thought to be jeopardized by his anxiety over the condition of his wife, who has been ill for several weeks. Dr. Schweninger reports the ex-chancellor in a state state of mental agitation that threatens serious consequences, although his pulse is good and his physical condition is fairly satisfactory.

Marbury Appointed District Attorney.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—The president, at Gray Gables, has appointed W. F. Marbury, of Maryland, to be attorney of the United States for the district of Maryland. Mr. Marbury was nominated for the office on May 12 last, but the senate failed to confirm him, mainly owing to the fact that Senator Gorman refused to urge the confirmation.

CAPE MAY CUP RACE OFF

The Unlucky Vigilant Again Loses Her Centerboard.

HER RACING IN ENGLAND ENDED.

Mr. Gould Would Have Entered the Race Without a Centerboard, but the Prince of Wales Accepts His Withdrawal, and the Yacht Will be Laid Up.

COWES, Sept. 5.—It has finally been decided that there will be no race this year for the Cape May challenge cup, held by the Britannia, on account of the loss of the Vigilant's centerboard while on her way here on Tuesday. The sailing committee of the Royal Yacht squadron, late yesterday afternoon, sent a letter to Mr. Howard Gould, who was on board the Vigilant here, saying that under the circumstances the Prince of Wales will consider the challenge for the cup as withdrawn.

Both the Messrs. Gould, Captain Hank Haff and the crew of the Vigilant generally are greatly depressed at this last accident to the American yacht.

Howard Gould, discussing the matter with a correspondent of the Associated Press, said:

"It is most unfortunate that we should be compelled to end the season's racing in this manner. The only explanation I can give for the loss of the centerboard is that the casting made at Southampton was defective.

"The accident occurred just as we were inside the Needles. We were sailing along in five fathoms of water. A friend and I were sitting at lunch when suddenly the machinery of the centerboard began revolving backwards. The cogs failed to hold the wheels and they flew around at a great pace.

"It was then evident that the board had dropped and was hanging by its chain. The board gave Vigilant several very hard bumps as we dragged it along for some distance and then, suddenly it broke entirely off.

"After our arrival here we made up our minds to race, centerboard or no centerboard, so long as we were allowed to ship extra ballast enough to make up for its loss. We had shipped an extra crew and were going to do our best to recapture the Cape May cup. We informed the Prince of Wales of our purpose, but an hour ago I received a note from the committee, informing us that under the circumstances the Prince of Wales would consider the challenge withdrawn.

"Of course, if we had insisted Britannia would have raced her, but I felt that we had no right to jeopardize the cup in this way. We could hardly have hoped to do ourselves justice without any centerboard, and had the Britannia won, as she probably would, American chances of seeing the cup again would been small, as Britannia would only have to win once more in order to become its possessor.

"There seems to be a fatality about our centerboard over here, and I don't wonder that the English don't like them; I don't like them myself now. Why, one of the things we hoped to prove to them was the desirability of using centerboards. But I guess that the lesson must now be taken the other way. Centerboards are certainly the last things one wants on most of these courses. The pilots here can never realize how much we draw with them, and there is constant danger from that source.

"Vigilant will be laid up immediately, and her crew will be shipped home as soon as she is dismantled, and this will probably be within a week. We shall never race the Vigilant again. I must admit that she is not suited for English waters. We shall not attempt to recover the centerboard."

The convention is the largest and most enthusiastic in the history of the organization, General Hastings, Senator Lyon and other of the state nominees are at the convention, and will speak tonight at the ratification meeting, which will be the formal opening of the campaign.

Desperate Fighting in Africa.

LONDON, Sept., 5.—A dispatch to The Pall Mall Gazette from Asaba, Niger Territory, says that desperate fighting has taken place in that part of Africa. It is added that sixty of the Royal Niger company's men were killed and wounded. The conflict grows out of disputes with the French in regard to boundary questions.

HE WAS A-PREPARIN.

JUMPIN JOE OF CHEROKEE MEETS AN ENTHUSIASTIC STRANGER.

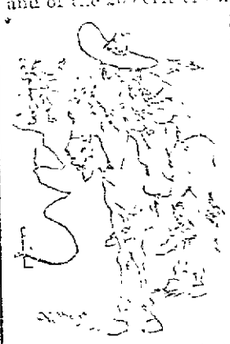
Who Had Been Measuring and Planning For a Month to Lay Out a Great Summer Resort, but Jumpin Joe Did Not Stay to See the Sequel.

I was amblin my enthusiastic way across the plains tords the magical town of New Chicago when I cums across a claimer who was measurin off his land with a tape line. I watches him fur awhile and then gently inquires:

"What ye ar' layin out to hev a sort of Niagara falls on yer claim?"

With that he smiles with great blandness, cums up to me with outstretched hand and jes fairly mashes me.

"Stranger, I lays a claim of sense. I've been measurin and plannin fur a month, and of the 200 citizens who heverd by yere ye ar' the only fuss who has let my intenshuns. D'ye ketch onto the cryin need of this yere Cherokee strip?"



"STRANGER, I LOVS A MAN OF SENSE."

"I does. Fustly and lastly and wussly than anythink else I kin name she needs a summer resort—a place whar the pantin rich and the perspirin poor kin cum and wander up and down the shady lanes of natur' and hev their ice cream served aboard of the placid gondolas as they idly glide in and among the green and refreshin islets."

The smile of that man was bewtiful to see and remember as he reaches up to embrace me and sez:

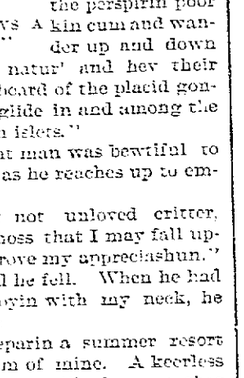
"Unknown but not unloved critter, descend from yer hoss that I may fall upon yer neck and prove my appreciashun."

I descended, and he fell. When he had grown weary of toyin with my neck, he braces up and sez:

"Yes, I'm a-preparin a summer resort on this yere claim of mine. A keerless look at the latest map will show ye that she ar' about equidistant from New Chicago, Happy Day, Last Chance and Golden Hill. It will be the only summer resort fur 100 miles in any direckshun and is sartin to draw the crowds."

"What's the plan?"

"Right yere whar we stand I shall hev a cascade 150 feet high. Thar won't be no flies on that cascade. She will leap from rock to rock in bewtiful cadence and wild disorder, sunthin like a man gittin out of a five story hotel at midnight at the cry of fire. She won't hev nuthin to do but cascade and leap and form and cadence, and I kin assure the confidin public that she will do business right along without regard to the weather. Down thar will be a placid lake, with canals leadin among var'us green islets. On each islet thar will be a Grecian pagoda. Gondolas will float up and down in a perfeckly harmless way, followed by boys in canoes learn plugs of terbacker and sunthin to drink. Down by that bush will be a central green islet, from which a band will send out strains of swe test music at brief intervals. Coyly tucked away in the umbrageous foliage will be rustic cabins for the benefit of them who can't take their Ecker straight without wipin their mouths on their elbows and tharfore desire seclushun from the eyes of the public. Critter, do ye foller?"



GOIN AFTER HIS GUN.

"I foller," sez I as I shuts my eyes and seems to hear the roarin of his cascadin cascade.

"It will be so arranged," he continues as he falls upon my perspirin neck again, "that ye kin press the button and order ham and eggs and hominy and taters and sich. The bewtiful strains of the 'Sweet By and By' will go floatin from this end down to'ards t'other to meet and mingle with the melody of 'The Arkansaw Traveler.' Thar will be no malaria, no fawg fights, nuthin to offend the most fastidious. The innercent child, born since this yere Cherokee strip was thrown open to settlement by an enlightened and cultivated constituency, kin commingle with the tuff old critters from the Arkansaw bottom lands and be no wuss fur it. What d'ye think of the plan, stranger?"

"About that cascade?" sez I. "Whar d'ye git the fall?"

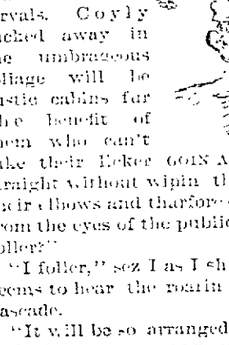
"D'ye hev to hev a fall fur a cascade?"

"Of course. And whar's the water to cum from to gently float them gentle gondolas?"

"Hev I got to hev water?"

"Heaps of it. And them pagodas and gondolas and coy cabins and umbrageous foliage—whar's the material to cum from?"

He bites off a piece of his plug terbacker, and a shade of sadness flickers over his face as he stands and gazes at me. By and by he asks:



IT FIRED.

"Stranger, what might ye be called out in this yere kentry?"

"By the cognomen of Jumpin Joe," sez I as I anticipates trouble and gits aboard my hoss.

"And hev ye got any pertickler nishun out yere?"

"I hev. I'm a-sellin Magic cement and Cherokee sassyparilly, both of my own compoundin. This yere grasshopper in this bottle illustrates the varchews of my Magic cement. When I fust started out, I used to break the hopper in two and glue him together agin to prove the integrity of my goods, but the public sot up the objeeshun that the critter had rights under the laws of Cherokee, and I had to cease my exhibishuns. He ar', however, a livin, brathin, hoppin example that my cement will do all I claim fur it. The last time I glued him together I got him wrong end to, and he has not only survived the change, but is the happier fur it. As fur the sassyparilly, it restores lost sperits; it arouses new enthoosiasm; it makes an ole fuss"——

"Stranger," interrupts the man as I was gittin out a bottle fur his benefit, "will ye jist kindly excuse me fur a minit while I fetch ye sum statistics of cascades from my dugout? Mebbe ye ar' right about the water and the fall, but I'd like ye to see my figgers."

I had a feelin that he was goin arter his shotgun, and that in his disappointment he might do sunthin he would allus regret. I tharfore moved on and was 60 rods away when he fired at me. I turns and waves my hand and rides on and leaves him to his disappointment. Three miles away I meets a crowd goin out to hang him fur jumpin the claim on which he was plannin fur a disordered cascade and gildin gondolas. I was courteously invited to be present on the auspishus occashun, but respectfully declined. Later in the day, however, I met sum of the hardy scouts of toil as they was returnin to Happy Day, and they kindly stopped and assured me that the performance was an unqualified success from beginnin to end.

AUSTIN KEENE.

P-e-a-r-l-i-n-e.

This is the way we spell it. It's necessary to mention it, because some women don't seem to know. We find so many who say they use Pearline, and then, upon examination, find that what they are using is only some imitation of it.

So if your package is marked as above. There is only one Pearline. It makes white things whiter—bright things brighter—economical and saves at every point. For washing and cleaning, nothing under any other name can equal it.

Send Peddlers and some unprincipled grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, it Back and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 414 JAMES PYLE, N. Y

"America's Greatest Men and Women."

AMERICA'S 2 GREATEST MEN AND WOMEN.

MR. WILSON TALKS.

MY Name is Wilson; I do an insurance business on LaSalle street, in Chicago Ill., and I live in Evanston, Ill. Evanston is what was originally a scattering population on a pretty point on Lake Michigan, esteemed years ago far from the city of Chicago, but now one of the varied towns which may go within it by vote of the population.

I am married and have a wife and one child. That child is a boy (I suppose I should feel the same solicitude if it was a girl), and I have a father's natural fancies as to what must be the best thing to give that child the right kind of intelligence, and so divert his course that he may succeed in life. I have studied a great deal upon the subject. My own experience would not be of great value, because I have succeeded only to the limit of the average man and am barely established; still, I own the house and lot upon which I live, and am feeling perfectly safe in meeting the exigencies of the year. I want the boy to take a broader view than I did, to be a bigger man in the world. I have studied how to teach him to do that, and he has done pretty well, as far as the preliminaries go. Now, I have thought over what I should say to him and have sometimes been puzzled. I could not very well tell him what to do. I wanted to tell him what I needed but what I did not learn myself when I was of his age, and what my father did not know how to tell me, or else was not thoughtful enough to do so. I wanted to tell him how to follow the example of those who have succeeded at the present time and under the circumstances which ordinarily affect a young man struggling in this Republic established on this comparatively new world to-day. I wanted to tell him just what he had better do to get along well, and to point out to him what had been done by the people who were successful at the present time.

Of course, the record of the people of any time past would not be of so much value, because circumstances must necessarily have been different when they were alive. I feel confident, though, that if I could learn, some way and somehow, what the people who are so successful to-day have done and how they did it, I could give to my boy such advice as would make his own life at least as far removed from failure as justified by the natural ability he may possess.

I looked around for some authority which I might consult in order to give him the facts most essential with this idea of mine in mind, but I could find none until I discovered that a great publishing firm in Chicago had decided to bring out a book giving the photographs of all the people who are prominent in America to-day. Here was what I wanted. The book, as I have learned, is going to be published in 16 parts, 16 pages to each, with a recent photograph on each page of some active leading American man or woman of to-day, while underneath appears the story of that same person's life—the story telling what that person did, and how the ends attained were eventually accomplished. Here was what I wanted; here was what I needed in various ways; here was what I was certainly seeking in order to obtain the information with which to educate my boy and secure for him that knowledge which will give him a source of thought and make him prominent in the world.

I have the first sheets of this work. It is a graphic story of America's Greatest Men and Women, told in each instance on a single page underneath a photograph of recent date, which conveys to the eye an idea of what that person is. To me the photograph tells even more than the suggestive record beneath; and yet it is odd how in each instance the correct story corresponds with the expression upon the face which is reproduced in the portrait above. I do not know how the series will end. I know very little about this new feature of the newspaper people; I know nothing about the publishers and their expectations, but I do know this: that if the series so begun should be continued to its practical, ordinary good sense end—and I don't care whether that will include 200 or 700 of America's Greatest Men and Women, which is the title of the book—I do know this, that for the ordinary, active and alert business man—I will certainly say far more for the student or the literary man, or the politician or the statesman—for all these I will say it will be simply the most valuable and the most remarkable book produced in modern history. The wonder is that some one has not thought of it before. Yet no one seems to have done so since the days of Plutarch. Plutarch knew something. That shrewd old fellow knew that all who would get out of the drift, all who would accomplish great things, wanted to know every detail of the lives of those who had better luck or more courage or a broader brain than their fellows; but I am no authority on these points. I only know that there is produced a second Plutarch's Lives, that its biographies are shrewd, graphic and curt, and written without bias and without prejudice. I only know that there was a Plutarch—God bless the old fellow—and that there is this modern work.

This is the work I am going to give to my boy. I am going to make him read it thoroughly. The work is announced as consisting of 16 Parts, with 16 pages and 16 photographs in each part, and when bound, the whole series will make a great volume of 256 pages, the like of which has never been equaled. It is the story of the personal character of the men and women who are making the nation's history at this particular time. What a work this is! Do you imagine that I would miss it for my boy, or, incidentally, for myself?

The Conductor's Bad Break.

To mind your own property is good general advice, but to sit beside your own property in railway trains and other conveyances is special advice worth minding.

In the Harlem River suburban train one afternoon last week a man sat in the forward seat of the car, with a large, compact package beside him, which might have been a dry goods bundle. At Bartow on the sound he got off, waving adieu to some individual away in the back and leaving the package behind him. No one noticed it until the train was just steaming out of the station, when it caught the conductor's eye.

Quick as a wink he snatched it, and before there was time to call halt measured the distance between the moving train and the escaping traveler's heels, hurling the package within an inch of them like a champion hammer thrower, with a big shout of warning.

Then a crash was heard loud enough to make every passenger strain forward and look out. The platform was strewn with fragments of fine china, which might have been portions of a dessert service, and simultaneously the conductor's arm was gripped by a man who rushed forward from the rear of the car.

"You blooming, confounded idiot!" he shouted. "How dare you touch my property! I'll make you pay for this, or else I'll make the company pay. What right had you to assume that my brother had anything to do with it?"

And then the true situation dawned on every one present, whose sympathies, however, were with the conductor's reply.

"I'm sorry you lost your property," he said. "I did the best I knew how when I thought I saw the real owner going. I couldn't tell 'twas breakable. Next time you'd better sit beside your own."—New York Herald.

Another Pleasure Gone.

"I don't know that these here scientific inventions do so much for the happiness of man as they are cracked up to," said the farmer to the king man, setting down his soda water glass, with a sigh.

"No?" remarked the drug clerk.

"No. For instances, we used to pass the time away in the grocery every winter argoin which was the mother of the chicken—the hen that laid the egg or the hen that hatched it. Nip an tuck right along, sometimes one side gittin the best of it an sometimes the other. Then Sam Hyer, he gits one of them incubators, and that busted the debate society. No man could argue for a new thing like a chicken's mother, of course, an now we ain't got nothin to argue on no more."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Standoff.

It is told of Horace Greeley that he once wrote a note to a brother editor in New York whose writing was equally illegible with his own. The recipient of the note, not being able to read it, sent it back by the same messenger to Mr. Greeley for elucidation.

Supposing it to be an answer to his own note, Mr. Greeley looked over it, but likewise was unable to read it and said to the boy: "Go take it back. What does the d——d fool mean?" "Yes, sir," said the boy, "that is just what he says."—Exchange.

Inducements.

He kissed her hand.

"Believe me, darling," he protested, "I would not marry for money alone, as the cruel world has told you."

She regarded him fixedly.

"If you imagine"——

There was a ring of decision in her voice.

——"I'm going to throw in some inside real estate to boot, you are much mistaken."—Detroit Tribune.

Living Up to His Light.

"That new hand I hired this morning," said Farmer Hayeroft, "plowed one furrow across the field and then went and laid down, and he hasn't moved since."

"What was the matter with him?"

"He said he believed in goin accordin to Scripter and that when a man has put his hand to the plow he never ort to turn back."—Chicago Tribune.

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.

The Democratic electors of the State of New York are requested to unite in sending three delegates from each Assembly District to the State Convention to be held at Saratoga, on Tuesday, Sept. 25th, 1894, at 12 o'clock, M., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates to be voted for at the ensuing general election, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The Populist-Republican combination failed to carry a single county in Arkansas. The Democratic State ticket has over 30,000 majority.

Mr. Platt is said to have captured eleven of the thirty Assembly district leaders in New York city, and it is more than likely that before the State Convention meets he will have a majority of the district organizations under his control. The attempt of the Union League Republicans to reorganize the Platt influence out of New York city seems to be anything but a success.

Another gubernatorial boom was started, yesterday. The Republicans of Broome county instructed their delegates to the State Convention to vote and work for the nomination of Mayor George E. Green, of Binghamton. The resolutions adopted by the convention are fulsome enough in their praise of Mr. Green to make those with patience to read the eulogy think that Mr. Green is one of the unknown great men of the Empire State.

The scheme of the Republican majority in the Constitutional Convention to delay action on the city and other articles until after election, when, if the Republicans have elected the Governor and a majority of the Legislature, they will be so framed as to take advantage of the political possibilities of the situation, degrades the convention to a lower level of partisanship than was ever reached by a representative body in this State. It is bad enough when partisan laws are enacted, but to prostitute the constitution to partisan ends is to exalt partisanship above good government.

The State Board of Equalization met at Albany, yesterday, and adopted the equalization table for 1894 submitted by the State Board of Assessors. Orange county's assessed valuation of $33,825,873 last year was raised $6,605,304, a much larger amount than was added to the valuation of any other rural county. The other counties, the valuations of which were largely increased, are New York, Westchester, Queens, Richmond and Oneida. The valuation of Rockland county was increased $1,495,115 and that of Delaware $1,149,422. Ulster county's valuation was decreased $1,850,777 and Sullivan's $333,213. Albany, Erie, Kings, Rensselaer, Monroe, St. Lawrence and Steuben counties were favored by the State Assessors with large reductions of valuation.

The result of the Vermont election—largely increased Republican majorities—was not unexpected. The Democrats made a spiritless contest and were almost without organization. It was not to the tariff agitation nor to the repeal of the maple sugar bounty that Democratic disheartenment and disorganization were due. In states where the Republican majority is so large that the election of a Democrat to state or local office is an impossibility, the hope of federal patronage is the only cohesive force in the Democratic organization and the chance of obtaining office under the general government the only incentive to active work in the Democratic ranks. After more than a year and a half of Democratic administration, the Landful of Democrats in Vermont see Republicans still holding most of the federal offices, and not unnaturally they feel that it is useless to do battle in support of an administration ungrateful for or at least indifferent to efforts in behalf of the Democratic cause.

UNVACCINATED CHILDREN SENT HOME.

Hundreds of Children Denied Admittance to Newburgh's Public Schools.

The determination of Newburgh's Board of Education to enforce its resolution to admit no children to the public schools who could not present evidence of "successful vaccination," caused a great deal of trouble at the opening of the schools, yesterday.

Out of 2,187 applicants 651 or over twenty-eight per cent. refused to be vaccinated. A number of unvaccinated children, perhaps seventy-five, agreed to be vaccinated inside of twenty days and were given certificates temporarily admitting them to the schools.

The number of pupils applying for admission is about 600 short of the number registered, last May, and it is believed most of these are unvaccinated and were kept from school because their parents knew they would be sent home. If this is the case nearly half the school children of the city are unvaccinated.

The anti-vaccination sentiment is very strong in the city and great trouble is anticipated before the matter is finally settled.

MODERN SURGERY.

The Large Part That Absolute Cleanliness Plays In Its Operations.

There are three indications, so to speak, the absolute cleanliness of which must be above suspicion before the operator is justified in proceeding to his work. These are the surgeon's hands, his instruments and the integument covering that part of the patient's body at which the operation is about to be performed. How is the requisite cleanliness in each case secured? Suffice us the hands are concerned, it is simply a matter of washing with a proper antiseptic soap and hot water, followed by a [illegible] rinsing in some antiseptic solution, as 1 in 2,000 of bichloride of mercury. So far as the instruments are concerned, by sterilization—that is, by boiling them in water for a sufficient length of time to destroy all germ life, or by passing them through the flame of a spirit lamp, and then, when the operation is ready to begin, by protecting them from [illegible]—that is, by keeping them in a solution of carbolic acid. Lastly, so far as the patient's integument is concerned, by washing the part first thoroughly with soap and water. Having previously shaved it, if necessary, and afterward with a permanganate of potash solution, or, if the part be greasy, by removing all the greasy material by scrubbing it with ether.

Without going into further details these are the cardinal principles of the science of operating in the present day. Of course each wound which in this manner is made under aseptic conditions, as it is called, is kept aseptic by the use of antiseptic dressings until healing has taken place. The results of this method of treatment of wounds are nothing less than wonderful in comparison with those which the earlier surgeons were able to obtain. What happens after, say, the amputation of a limb nowadays? The rule is, nothing—nothing, that is to say, beyond the uneventful convalescence of the patient.

The dressings are not touched unless the temperature and the pulse of the patient indicate by some disturbance, that it would be expedient to examine the wound. The temperature and the pulse are the surgeon's guide. He takes his cue from them. Nothing can be amiss in the wound if these remain normal, and thus it follows that a large wound, such as that following an amputation, heals soundly from first to last without any suppuration. What a contrast with that which obtained in former days! Suppuration was then thought to be an indispensable part of the healthy process of healing. In the present time, on the contrary, a surgeon is held to have failed in his practice of the principles of surgical cleanliness if, in wounds originally aseptic, suppuration occurs.—Nineteenth Century.

DROWNED IN THE WALLKILL.

An Aged Lady Falls from a Boat While Reaching for an Oar.

Coroner Decker was summoned to Montgomery, last night, to hold an inquest upon the body of Mrs. Amelia Johnson, who was drowned in the Wallkill, yesterday afternoon.

The unfortunate lady, who was seventy-four years of age, went out rowing with her fifteen year old granddaughter, Mamie. The latter was rowing, and when they had gone some distance in the stream, she headed the boat towards the shore and stepped out upon the bank for a moment. The boat drifted away from the bank, and Mrs. Johnson in her effort to secure an oar fell out of the boat.

Mamie waded into the water to help her grandmother, but soon found that the water was too deep. She then ran for assistance, and Messrs. John Wood and John Pitts rowed toward the spot where the old lady had disappeared. They found the body floating down with the current. An effort was made to resuscitate the woman but she was beyond human help.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning. Mrs. Johnson was the widow of Hiram Johnson.

THE ENGINEERS' PICNIC.

Erie Knights of the Throttle and Their Families at Midway.

Port Jervis Division, B. of L. E., is holding its annual picnic at Midway Park, to-day.

A special train of seven coaches, carrying 350 railroad men and their wives and children, left Port Jervis at 8:40 and arrived here at about 9:30 o'clock.

The Traction Company had seven electric cars waiting on Depot street, but all were not needed, as many of the visitors did not go to the park at once, but strolled about town or called upon relatives and friends.

Eventually, however, all found their way to the park, and many took their Middletown friends with them.

At the park the time was at first spent in strolling about the grounds admiring the natural advantages of Midway and the many artistic improvements made by the Traction Co. in the few weeks the work has been going on. The Emmet Band orchestra accompanied the party, and after the first tour of the park was made, dancing began and was kept up almost continuously.

Many persons brought their lunches with them and little parties were formed in the convenient spots provided in the park; others used the tables on the "island" and others still patronized the restaurant.

It was noticeable that a very large majority of the party was made up of ladies and children, as many railroad men were unable to leave their posts of duty, but sent their families.

The special did not bring all the engineers and their families to the city, for many came on regular trains during the day, and probably 500 in all were at the park during the day.

Among the prominent railroad men present during the day we noticed the following:

Engineers H. Palmer, Arthur O'Hara, Chas. Snyder, Frank Sweeney, James Kane, Levi Lindley, Jas. Canneen, Ed. Phelps, Jos. Ronk, Harvey Watts, John Medrick, Robt. Compton, J. P. Walsh; Conductors J. Fisher, E. O. Harding, Geo. A. Allerton.

Geo. Hill, Master Mechanic of the Chicago and Erie road; Foreman Jas. McCormick, of the Port Jervis shops; Judge Conkling, Officer Harbeit and Baggagemaster S. Dubois, of Port Jervis, and H. C. Linderman, of Scranton, Pa., and others were among the party.

Another special train will leave Port Jervis this evening at 7 o'clock, arriving here at 7:45, which will bring the husbands and other friends of many of the ladies who came on the earlier trains.

The first special will return to Port Jervis at 5 o'clock, and the second at 10:30 o'clock.

As usual, the Traction company cared for its excursionists admirably.

HYMENEAL.

Osborn-Purdy.

There was a quiet wedding at the residence of Mr. Horton W. Purdy, No. 11 William street, at 7 o'clock, last evening, when his daughter, Miss Janie A., was united in marriage with Mr. Geo. A. Osborn, the operator in the West Main street tower.

There were present about twenty-five of the relatives and intimate friends of the contracting parties.

Miss Emma V. Cross was the bridesmaid and Mr. Fred S. Osborn was best man.

The ceremony was performed by Elder Benton Jenkins, pastor of the Primitive Baptist Church.

After the ceremony a fine wedding supper was served and Mr. and Mrs. Osborne drove to the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Osborn, at New Hampton.

The bride received a number of handsome presents from admiring friends.

The Argus extends congratulations and best wishes.

The Receipts of Taxes.

Yesterday was the last day for receiving taxes without the additional 5 per cent., and City Clerk Hamilton and his assistant, Mr. C. B. Hulse, had a busy day, the receipts of the day being $17,383.60. The total receipts of the first 50 days were $50,-556.70, leaving $9,172.45 yet unpaid.

Meeting of the Officers of the German Lutheran Church.

A meeting of the officers of the German Lutheran Church was held last evening, at which considerable business was transacted. All of public interest, however, was the election of William Kurtz as Secretary, and Louis Wengenroth as Treasurer.

THE COUNTY COURT.

Business Transacted Before Judge Beattie at Newburgh.

From the Newburgh Journal.

County Court opened in this city, Monday morning, with Hon. John J. Beattie presiding, and James Cronon and Henry Van Duzer at his side as associates.

In the case of George A. Lamoreaux, respt., vs. Henry Van Cleft and Sarah E. Cook, the plaintiffs were ready, the defendants not ready.

Zachariah T. Johnson vs. Abner Mills. Ready for the defense.

Charles H. Lary vs. Thomas McKenzie. Over.

George German vs. Mary Oram. A motion had been made to dismiss the appeal.

James E. McElroy, pltff. and applt. vs. Townsend D. Millspaugh, defendant respondent. Over.

Enoch H. Lee vs. The Cranston and West Point Hotel Company. Motion to dismiss had been made.

Elnora Rall as admx., etc. vs. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. An agreement had been made to set the case down for trial the first week in October.

Isaac Newell vs. Thomas J. Gilroy. Ready.

District Attorney M. H. Hirschberg next arraigned the prisoners.

Frank Ayres, charged with stealing harness in New Windsor, pleaded not guilty.

Winfield S. Force pleaded guilty to bigamy and was remanded for sentence.

Richard Lloyd and Thomas Kerwin, indicted for robbery in the first degree, pleaded guilty to grand larceny in the second degree and were remanded for sentence.

George Lateer pleaded guilty to stealing a gun and was remanded for sentence.

Minnie Leybolt, indicted for bigamy, pleaded not guilty and will have a trial.

Christopher Boyce pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and will have a trial.

A feature of Monday's brief session of court was Judge Beattie's charge to the Grand Jurors in reference to the jail. He said: "It is stated that the jail was so constructed that it is accessible from the outside, and it is stated that liquor is passed in. The presence of the prisoners is extremely detrimental to the peace of the neighborhood. The sheriff says he is unable to bring about a change. Nothing, unless it may be the erection of a barrier, will be sufficient to bring about a change. It is your duty, gentlemen, to inquire into that matter. If the change can be effected it is your duty to do so, that the whole condition of affairs may be remedied."

At noon the court was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

TUESDAY'S SESSION.

The man Ayres was subjected to a long trial, and the jury disagreed.

Daniel Malley was tried and found guilty of snatching a pocketbook.

Minnie Leybolt changed her plea to guilty.

The Western Union lineman who cleaned out a couple of strangers at the Metropolitan Hotel pleaded guilty.

Theodore Godfrey, indicted for forging the name of John D. Rockafellow to checks on the First National Bank of this city, when called on to plead, said, "in a measure I am guilty." Herbert Gedney, Esq., said that soon after Godfrey's arrest he visited him in his cell and was satisfied from his talk that the man was not entirely sane. Three of his immediate family are insane. The prisoner was without means and he did not like to take his case without compensation. Judge Beattie assigned Mr. Gedney to the case, who asked for a medical examination of the prisoner.

All Minnie Leybolt's four husbands were in court, and the sight of them sitting together is believed to have led to her withdrawing her plea of not guilty.

Small Attendance on the Circus.

There was only a small crowd at the evening performance of Forepaughs circus, which exhibited yesterday, at the North End. Many believe that the crowd would have been greater, if the circus people had pitched their tents on the Pleasure Grounds.

Too Much Circus.

A farm laborer from Grahamsville, Sullivan county, came to town, yesterday, to see the circus. He became very obstreperous at the Wickham avenue station and was arrested by Special Officer Grant Wilson. He professed penitence, this morning, and considered himself lucky to get off with the usual three dollars fine.

The Jumping Bean.

Mr. J. Erskine Mills, the druggist, is the sole agent in Middletown for the "jumping bean."

The bean is one of three seeds of a Mexican Euphorbia, containing the larva of a moth, (carpocapsa saltitans). The larva by its sudden movements causes the seed to roll and jump about, thereby affording considerable amusement to the onlooker.

Monday Night's Entertainment—A Scarce Article—What Might Have Been a Serious Fire—Various Local and Personal Items.

From a special correspondent

—The Rock Band Co. gave a very interesting and unique entertainment at Music Hall on Monday evening. The variety of musical tones that they managed to extract from the fragments of stone, and from the musical glasses, was really wonderful. The swinging harps also were something entirely novel. The performance was enthusiastically received by the large audience present. After its conclusion the floor was cleared for dancing, which was continued until after midnight. The ladies of the Guild realized a handsome sum from the entertainment.

—It is said that Mr. Wm. Till, manager of the Rock Band Co., raised some consternation by asking for rain water with which to fill the musical glasses. Several cisterns in town were canvassed before satisfactory returns were obtained.

—Some of the inhabitants of South street were alarmed on Sunday by discovering that a portion of the grass in the field in the rear of the cemetery was on fire. The prompt action of a number of gentlemen, who formed themselves into an impromptu fire brigade, and soon beat out the flames, suppressed what might, in this dry time, easily have proved a serious conflagration. It is not known how the fire started unless from a spark from the pipes of some men who had been smoking in the meadow.

—Miss Ruth Woodruff and Miss Lizzie Kipp returned to the State Normal School at Genesee, N. Y., on Monday evening.

—Wm. W. Lockwood, of Buffalo, and George M. Grier and Augustus Mapes, of New York, were among those who spent Labor Day in this village.

—Rev. Dr. Maison preached at St. James' Church on Sunday.

—Mrs. and Miss Matthews, who have been spending a short time at the seashore, have returned to their home in this village.

—Mr. Thomas Evans, of New York, is the guest of relatives in this village.

A STRANGE CASE.

How an Enemy was Foiled.

The following graphic statement will be read with intense interest: "I cannot describe the numb, creepy sensation that existed in my arms, hands and legs. I had to rub and beat those parts until they were sore, to overcome in a measure the dead feeling that had taken possession of them. In addition, I had a strange weakness in my back and around my waist, together with an indescribable 'gone' feeling in my stomach. Physicians said it was creeping paralysis, from which, according to their universal conclusion, there is no relief. Once it fastens upon a person, they say, it continues its insidious progress until it reaches a vital point and the sufferer dies. Such was my prospect. I had been doctoring a year and a half steadily, but with no particular benefit, when I saw an advertisement of Dr Miles' Restorative Nervine, procured a bottle and began using it. Marvelous as it may seem, but a few days had passed before every bit of that creepy feeling had left me, and there has not been even the slightest indication of its return. I now feel as well as I ever did, and have gained ten pounds in weight, though I had run down from 170 to 137. Four others have used Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine on my recommendation, and it has been as satisfactory in their cases as in mine."—James Kane, La Rue, O.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles for $5, express prepaid. It is free from opiates or dangerous drugs.

THE BLIND MAN.

The blind man at his window bars
Stands in the morning dewy dim.
The lily footed dawn, the stars
That wait for it, are naught to him.

And naught to his unseeing eyes
The brownness of a sunny plain,
Where worn and drowsy August lies
And wakens but to sleep again.

And naught to him a greening slope
That yearns up to the heights above,
And naught the leaves of May that ope
As softly as the eyes of love.

And naught to him the branching aisles
Athrong with woodland worshipers,
And naught the fields where summer smiles
Among her sunburned laborers.

The way a trailing streamlet goes,
The barefoot grasses on its brim,
The dew that some flower cup o'erflows
With silent joy, are hid from him.

To him no breath of nature calls.
Upon his desk his work is laid.
He looks up at the dingy walls
And listens to the voice of trade.

—Ethelwyn Wetherald.

THE TUTOR.

"Say, fellows, let's get rid of him. We can't stand that sort of a teacher," said Jack Darwin one day last April. "He makes me sick—always preaching, preaching, pre"——

"Let's settle him!" shouted three or four from the outside of the group.

"Aye, aye!" came the answers, and Taffy Douglass, the fat boy, with his slow movements, had just opened his mouth for an "Aye!" when he caught sight of the new tutor looking at the boys with a frown on his face, and so he transferred the intended part of speech into another loud yawn which made the new tutor jump, whereupon all the boys giggled.

"Who is to be 'settled,' Thorn?" the tutor asked of the tall boy who stood nearest him. Thorn colored up to the roots of his hair—he had a very fair complexion and blushed easily, which led to his being called "Rosie" by the others—and stammered:

"I forg—I don't—didn't hear, Mr. Whyland."

"Perhaps you didn't hear the bell ring for you to go back to your class either. What is it, Blake?" demanded the young man, turning to Teddy.

"What, Mr. Whyland?" asked Teddy innocently.

"Who were you going to 'settle' as I came in?"

"Oh, that's only a little way we have of speaking about those Latin translations, sir."

The tutor looked as though he did not believe Teddy's explanation, but he said nothing more about it.

Mr. Whyland was the new assistant at the academy. He had been there only a week, but in that time had managed with his extra rules and hard punishments to make all the boys his enemies. He did not seem to get along with them somehow. Perhaps boarding school boys are hard to get along with. Dr. Arnold, president of the school, had engaged this young man to fill a vacancy on his staff of instructors not because he knew him personally, but because he had taken high honors at graduation, and, too, his mother was an old friend of the doctor's. "He is a very nice fellow with the men," the doctor had told his wife, "but he forgets he ever was a boy. I'll have a little talk with him. He punishes too often, and the boys can't get his big worded explanations through their heads." But Dr. Arnold postponed his little talk too long, for the boys "settled" their tutor first.

That afternoon the third form boys did not make as much noise as usual, and that dear old lady, Mother Arnold, as she was affectionately called, scented mischief as she looked from her window out on the playground. The boys were grouped together, talking and gesticulating violently, and Mother Arnold thought she ought to tell the doctor about it, but he was out, and by the time he came in everything was quiet again. What transpired on the "campus" I'll tell you just as it was said.

"Let's boycott him," suggested Teddy, who hadn't a very well defined idea of what boycotting was.

"Oh, shut up!" growled Ned Turner, a thickset fellow with less than his share of brains. "The only way to fix him is to fight. Take him when he isn't prepared, and two or three of us big fellows will lay him out."

"That's cowardly," said Frank Snow. "Nobody but Turner would think of doing such"——

"Take that back!" shouted Ned, "or I'll show you who's a cow"——

But Frank didn't, because just then Harry Boot, the class beauty, shouted "Hurrah!" at the top of his voice, and every one rushed over to where he and Taffy were seated on the fence to see what was the matter. These two had been separated from the other boys for quite awhile, and as Taffy announced:

"The Beauty has struck it, fellows! We'll force old Why to resign, and I'm going to do the biggest part of it!"

"What?" "How?" "When?" were the questions then asked.

"Be quiet, and I'll tell you," said Harry. "We'll make life disagreeable for him and make him give up teaching us. Don't any of you boys study your lessons tonight, and tomorrow make all the noise you can in class, and at evening session Taffy will do something to astonish you."

"What?" cried Ted.

"Wait and see," drawled Taffy, "only have your rubber erasers and lots of paper balls on hand to use."

That night was very long to the expectant boys, but they were so quiet during evening session that the tutor thought he had commenced to have some control over his charges. But the morning dispelled the illusions he had on this score. Not one in the third form knew his lessons, and what was worse, they all owned they hadn't studied a bit.

After supper that day, when the gong sounded for all pupils to retire to their respective classrooms, there was a half suppressed excitement among the third form boys. For all Mr. Whyland's commands no one thought of studying.

At last the tutor lost patience.

"I shall have to refer this matter to the doctor," he began.

"Do," said Frank, whose desk was on the opposite side of the room from Taffy.

Now was Taffy's chance. He cautiously mounted his desk, his cheeks bulged out with wind, looking like a full moon. The boys commenced to cheer, and Mr. Whyland turned in time to see Taffy standing on tiptoe on the desk, with his mouth directly over a gas burner. That was all he saw, however, for just then Taffy's mouth opened, and a gust of wind from it swept down the gas burner. Immediately all was darkness, not only in that room, but in the whole building.

Then what an uproar there was! Rubbers and books commenced to fly in the direction of the tutor. Then some one fired an inkstand toward the blackboard. It did not reach its destination. Just then the door opened, and Dr. and Mrs. Arnold, with several of the teachers and older boys, appeared with lights and matches to stop the gas that was escaping from every flameless burner.

"Silence!" roared the old man, and every one fell into the seat nearest to him. "What does this mean, Mr. Whyland?"

But Mr. Whyland didn't answer. He was lying on the floor.

The doctor hurried to him, but found him insensible. There was a deep wound in his head, from which the blood flowed freely.

You could have heard a pin drop any time during the next 15 minutes, the silence was so deep after Mr. Whyland had been carried to his room. Finally Mrs. Arnold returned. She looked worried, and the sight of her face made the culprits feel very uncomfortable.

"Boys," she said, "what does it all mean? Do you know what you have done? The doctor thinks Mr. Whyland will not recover from the blow given him by that inkstand. I do not ask who threw it, but do you realize what has been done?"

"Mother Arnold," said Harry, breaking the silence, "it's my fault. I suggested putting the gas out. I'll take the blame."

"But I did it," said Taffy, two great tears rolling down his cheeks, "and I suggested erasers and spitballs."

"I threw three rubbers and a book," owned Jack.

"And I some beans," said another. "Will he die, Mother Arnold?"

"It is a serious injury," said Mrs. Arnold, "but we will hope for the best. For present punishment you will be closely confined to the house for a week, and the doctor will see you later."

"We don't mind that," said Harry, choking over his words, "if only he doesn't die."

There was very little sleeping done that night at the academy, especially by the third form boys. Only one or two had gone so far as to prepare for bed. The others stood around in awed and silent groups.

After the consultation the doctors pronounced Mr. Whyland to be suffering from a severe attack of brain fever. Never were boys so frightened at what they had done or so repentant. Mr. Whyland's mother was telegraphed for, and late in the afternoon she arrived, accompanied by Bessie, one of her daughters. Of his five sisters, Bessie was her brother's favorite, and the boys didn't wonder, for a lovelier young lady they never had seen. As soon as she arrived the whole school fell in love with her and would do anything that she wished. The third form boys naturally felt a trifle shy after what they had done, but she made friends with one and all.

Lessons were quite neglected in the week that followed, and the boys were quiet as mice. Harry and Taffy made their confession to the young tutor's mother, but where they expected to be blamed they were forgiven. After tedious waiting Mr. Whyland began to recover. He would not let Dr. Arnold expel the boys; said he himself was at fault to make enemies and not friends of the boys. The boys were untiring in their efforts to run errands and do everything for him.

One day, when her son was nearly well, Mrs. Whyland went to the third form classroom with Mrs. Arnold and made a little speech to the boys.

"I want to tell you, boys," said she, "how Richard, my only son, was brought up. His father was a naval officer and was away part of every year before he died, and so left me to manage the boy. Richard never went to school, as you boys do, but I taught him at home with his five sisters. He associated only with women until he went to college, so you can easily see why he didn't know how to manage or teach boys. He says that when he recovers he is going to know you better and is sure that he will like you and be able to make you understand. His physician allows him to go out for the first time tomorrow, and he wants to see you."

Then the boys understood. No wonder poor Mr. Whyland did not know how to manage them. He had been brought up with his sisters, whom, if they were all like Bessie, must be very nice indeed, and he had been supporting them by teaching.

The next day was a holiday in honor of the young tutor's recovery.

Toward noon he appeared on the steps leading to the playground, supported by his mother and Bessie. He was greeted with shouts of applause, and the third form boys had humbly begged his forgiveness. He made a little speech, saying that he trusted he should manage them better in the future, and he hoped they would always be the best of friends.

"And, boys," he added, with twinkling eyes, "I have learned something new about gas, and since I have recovered I am glad that you did 'settle' me."

"Three cheers for Professor Whyland and Miss Bessie!" cried Harry, and the hurrahs could be heard for miles.—Katherine N. Birdsall in Philadelphia Press.

ASTOR IN ENGLAND.

Ubiquitous Tom Ochiltree Tells How the Millionaire Does Things.

The arrival in Washington of Colonel Tom Ochiltree after four years' absence created something of a sensation this week at the capitol. Colonel Ochiltree is always entertaining and has many friends in Washington. He knows everybody, of course, and those that don't know him know of him. When he appeared on the floor of the house the other day, he received something like an ovation. All his acquaintances gathered around him, and the noise was so great that the speaker had to rap for order and suggest that those who occasioned the disorder should retire to the cloakroom. Members clustered around the redheaded ranger of the Rio Grande to congratulate him on the cut of his clothes, the loudness of his trousers, the added 20 pounds of weight which he had gained during his residence abroad and to listen to the latest stories which he brought from across the water about the nobility of London.

The colonel is a great admirer of the British aristocracy. He does not speak familiarly about any one of a lower degree in the peerage than an earl. The way he talks about his friend the duke of this and the duke of that is paralyzing. There is only one gentleman without title in London that Tom speaks enthusiastically about. He is the American named Astor, now running a Tory paper in the British metropolis.

"William Waldorf Astor," said the colonel as he cast his weather eye toward the ceiling, crossed his legs reflectively and waved his hand gracefully through the air, "is paralyzing London by the evidence which he gives of what American wealth and American high breeding can accomplish abroad. He is worth $200,000,000 and would gladly have spent his income in New York had he been given half a show. He is an author and a gentleman. He was anxious to enter politics and presented himself for the suffrage of the people of Gotham as a candidate for congress. As they always do in New York when a gentleman runs for office, Mr. Astor was unceremoniously turned down. He therefore concluded to move temporarily at least to a more congenial clime and is now located in London. His methods have elicited admiration and amazement from that the greatest capital in the world.

"He wished to buy a home. 'What is the best house for sale in London?' asked Mr. Astor. 'Cliveden,' said the attorney. 'It belongs to the Duke of Westminster and can be had for $8,000,000.' 'Buy it,' said Mr. Astor. 'and bring the deeds to me in half an hour, if possible.' 'Good heavens!' exclaim d the attorney, 'it will take several days to consummate the transaction.' 'Consummate it as quickly as possible,' said Mr. Astor, 'and if you have six or seven more houses just as good for sale let me know.'

"He got Cliveden and is now spending $1,000,000 in fitting it up, and he is hearing the dukes on their own ground. A few days after, Mr. Astor, who has literary tastes, inquired in a casual manner where he could buy first class paper with which to write. 'I want the best there is in the market,' said Mr. Astor, 'and I want it quick.'

"'Pall Mall Gazette,' said the attorney. 'Have it sent to me at once.' 'No,' said the proprietor. 'Never mind the price, but I must have it.' The bargain was struck. The next day Mr. Astor received a note from the proprietor of the Pall Mall Gazette, in which he said that he was willing to sell the paper, but that he could not consent to be dictated to by Mr. Astor. He would be glad to receive any suggestions that Mr. Astor might make, but he must be left entirely free to conduct the paper as he thought best. Mr. Astor was highly pleased with the letter. 'Even more than I expected,' said Mr. Astor. 'My dear sir,' he wrote in reply, 'what I want is for you to have absolute control and control me and my millions.' His subsequ[illegible] office wears a puzzled look as he sees the blue pencil.

"His present property is a descendant of a family which came over with Billy the Conqueror. The [illegible] of Tyrconnel, whereon his vacation lies, is a baronial castle in Yorkshire. No such stuff is found on any other paper in the world. When Mr. Astor gets up in the morning and rings for cocoa and toast his managing editor is warming over the first to receive orders for the day. A cup of hot cocoa and a piping hot [illegible] are sent up. He tried to get a message to the lady cashier of the business office and was much disappointed at finding it closed, but expects to get [illegible] to complete a transaction with a wealthy duchess, who will use a postal stamps and add distinction to the down stairs department of the [illegible].

"It can honestly be said that Mr. Astor's latest holiday [illegible] and praiseworthy [illegible] among the nobility in London since brought him [illegible]. No one puts on any frills to him. Fully an Americans are [illegible] of a man who could buy out the royal family and yet is a simple citizen of the United States, holding up its banner and defending its democratic traditions.

"Mr. Astor did not like the hotel in London at which he was obliged to stop. He sent for his attorney. 'Where is the best site for a hotel in London,' asked Mr. Astor. 'The Thames embankment,' replied the attorney. 'Buy it,' said Mr. Astor. 'It is not for sale,' said the attorney. 'Anything is for sale,' said Mr. Astor, 'if the price is high enough.' The attorney worked for six weeks, but was unable to secure the entire Thames embankment. He did, however, purchase an acre of ground for $1,000,000, and Mr. Aster would have put up a $10,000,000 hotel if the times had not been so stringent and his income slightly reduced. Before long we may expect to see another Waldorf hotel in London of which William Waldorf Astor will be the owner."—Washington Cor. St. Louis Republic.

SHOTS HERE AND THERE.

AN "ARGUS" MAN OFF DUTY AIMS AT SEVERAL SUBJECTS.

A Hard Season on the Roads—Effects of the Use of Road Machines—Many Visitors to the Scene of the Halliday Murders.

If it ever rains again, the roads will be left in very bad shape, for the dust, now several inches deep on the much-traveled highways, and ground into the finest powder, will be washed into the ditches and the stones over which wagons now bump and pound will all be left bare. A summer such as this has been is harder on the country roads than the wear of several seasons.

It is noticeable that the roads on which road machines have been used are dustier than those which have not been "honed down" and rounded up by this device for making good roads impossible. The explanation is, of course, that the material scraped from the ditches and sides of the road into the roadway is lacking in the grit and substance that makes new gravel or clay fit for road-making. The impalpable dust now on the roads, which will be washed into the ditches by the first rain, will be scraped back on the roads next spring, and it does not take an expert to know that roads made of such stuff are certain to be bad roads, thick with dust in dry seasons, deep with mud in wet ones.

***

The little farm on the mountain side above Burlingham, the scene of Mrs. Halliday's three murders, has become the show place of the vicinity and has been visited during the summer by hundreds of city boarders from the country roundabout. The by-road leading from the main road to the farm is as much travel worn and as deep in dust as the main road itself, and at the farm the ground about the tie posts is worn and trampled by the feet of many horses, while well worn paths lead from the road to the shanty in which the murders were committed and to the barn in the basement of which the bodies of the McQuillan women were concealed. The passing of the year has worked few changes about the place. The barn is just as it was, last fall, a little more dilapidated, perhaps, but otherwise unchanged. The manure under which the bodies were buried is still in the basement. The two-roomed shanty is just as it was, last year, except that a few boards have been removed. The shallow grave, from which the body of old Paul Halliday was taken, has not been filled up, but is left to give visitors with nerves a queer turn. The "no trespassing" signs which Mr. Morris B. Wolf, the owner of the property, has posted all along the roadway will never serve any useful purpose so long as the barn and house are left in their present condition to attract the morbidly curious.

TUBERCULOSIS IN BORDEN'S HERD.

Twenty Cows Condemned by a State Inspector

Professor James Law, of Cornell University, by request of Gail Borden, is examining the latter's herd of 300 choice Jersey and Holstein cattle. Symptoms of tuberculosis had become manifest. Thus far twenty of the cows have been condemned, although only about one-third of the herd has been gone over.

Arrested by the Conductor.

Canal Navigation Stopped by the Drouth.

Dr. Otto's Cure.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Aug. 22, 1891.
B. H. Bacon, Dear Sir: After selling Dr. Otto's Cure for the past three years, and by your books you may know I have sold an immense quantity, I can say with all fairness and honesty it is the best remedy I have ever offered to the public in my experience as a retail druggist.

Have had cures related to me which were almost incredible. Have used it for myself and in my family with the best of results.

Wishing you unlimited success, I am very respectfully yours.

The second race meeting of the Middletown Wheelmen, which will be held at the Campbell track, Wednesday, Sept. 19, promises some excellent sport. A first-class programme has been arranged, and the prizes are of sufficient value to attract some of the crack riders of the metropolis and Brooklyn. A number of entries have been received already, and a long list will in all probability be in the hands of the secretary, Ira Moore, before the dates for the closing of the entries, which are Sept. 12 for the handicap, and Sept. 15 for the balance of the races.

NEW YORK'S IMPROVED MILK SUPPLY.

Much Better in Quality Than It Was Ten Years Ago—Reasons for the Improvement.

Dr. Cyrus Edson, New York city's Health Commissioner, says that the quality of the city's milk supply has been gradually improving for ten years. The system of inspections has taught dealers that it is unsafe to water their milk and families having learned what good milk is will not be put off with an inferior article. Farmers too, Dr. Edson says, have learned to be more cleanly in the care of cows and the use of utensils, because dealers are unwilling to handle milk which contains impurities.

Credit for better dairy methods is largely due the great condensing companies,—the Anglo-Swiss and Borden. Absolutely pure milk, unpolluted by filth and uncontaminated by foul odors, is a necessity in a condensing establishment, and the system of inspection adopted by the condenseries to enforce cleanliness in milking and the proper care of milk has had the effect of educating the farmers in different localities to the advantages and the commercial value of neatness in their dairy work. Creamerymen, seeing the good results that have followed the system of the condenseries, have also insisted on greater regard for cleanliness in the dairies of those from whom they buy milk, and other farmers following their example the result has been a marked improvement in methods of milking and of caring for milk.

GOSHEN AND MIDDLETOWN.

Reflections of a Goshenite After a Ride to Midway.

"Observer," a writer in the Goshen News, made a trip to Midway Park over the electric road and describes his trip in a well written article. We clip the following paragraph from the article:

Does anyone embrace the idea that the Goshenites will remain long resting supinely on their backs while Middletowners are enjoying so much every day fun, music, money and glory derived from the present electric road to Midway Park without a participation in the affair? Goshen people differ somewhat from the people of Middletown from a lack of go-aheadativeness but her interesting attributes, her substantiability and the wealth of her citizens are tolerably solid and permanent. Goshen is more particularly inclined to wait and see what is likely to turn up, but Middletown strongly possesses the spirit of enterprise and activity to bring out something worthy of admiration, and with the ambition and sagacity to render their city renowned for its improvements, its manufacturing industries and other qualifications so as to make of it a noted place, a model city.

And It Is Aggravating.

As a rule most people are intensely exasperated when, after wading through some exciting story in the newspaper which they have devoured with breathless interest, to find at the finish it is only a trap to advertise some wonderful soap or patent medicine. Of course it's disappointing, but just consider how cleverly it's done, and, by the way, what a wonderful industry has been developed in this mode of advertising. Some of the great medicine firms pay their advertising agent as high as $10,000 a year, and a certain manufacturer of soap pays his advertiser $25,000. Just think of it, and while you are thinking just remember that "She Couldn't Marry Three" is the best show on the road.

Population of the State Hospital.

According to the Conglomerate there were, Wednesday, 1,082 patients in the State Hospital, in this city, of whom 732 were males and 350 females. During the week three patients were admitted and one discharged.

HIS HONOR, THE BABY.

His Absorbing Love and Loyalty for Mamma During the First Year—Two Hearts That Beat as One.

A pretty, healthy child,
With cheeks like an apple,
Who babbles, chatters, prattles,
Who laughs beneath your kisses.

Perhaps it is well that but few mothers know that more than one-third of all the babies born die before they have lived a year, and that two-thirds of them die in the summer months.

Where the food is absolutely pure and sufficiently nourishing, though the mercury runs high, children get along as a rule perfectly well.

When for any reason the mother cannot nurse her child, or when her milk is insufficent or poor in quality, the best trained nurses use lactated food at once. It is known to invariably make firm flesh, a clear skin, bright eyes, and to strengthen the body so that diarrhea, cholera infantom and exhausting summer sickness do not easily gain a footing. Lactated food babies are rosy specimens of genuine fun loving, noisy children that develop strong physiques with large bones and muscles.

"I OWE MY LIFE TO YOU."

A Wilton, N. J., Girl's Experience With a Noted Massachusetts Woman.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Life is never more precious than in the heyday of youth, when every dream is a promise, and every thought an inspiration.

It is natural that Miss Gertrude Sickler, a young lady who lives at Wilton, N.J., is grateful for the great boon of life.

She suffered terribly with suppressed and painful menstruations. The doctors could only prevent her from having fits each month by dosing her with morphine.

At last, when she was completely prostrated, her father got her a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which at once gave her relief.

That did what the doctors could not do. It cured her. She has no trouble now, and no dread of the coming month. "I owe my life to you," she writes to Mrs. Pinkham. "Oh, if other suffering women could try your valuable medicine they would bless you as I do."

INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC

Commencing first week in Sept. The study of voice development involves a far more important fact than correct singing, requiring a correct use of the lungs and throat on which in very many cases, one's health depends. The practice of singing correctly is calculated to bring about the healthy action and development of muscles which otherwise would have lain dormant, and the breathing exercises are of incalculable value to those inclined to pulmonary weakness. Write me or call at Middletown Music Store and have time assigned you for a trial lesson, free.
